

Identification and assessments of factors affecting farmer women

Zahra Abolfathzade¹, Amir M. Amini², Ali Yousefi

Senior students of Isfahan University of Technology, Faculty of Agriculture 1.
University of Technology, Faculty of Agriculture 2. Assistant Professor, Isfahan
University of Technology, Faculty of Agriculture 3
Zahra_abolfathzadeh@yahoo.com

According to one decade assertion on empowerment of rural women in developing programs, the purpose of this study was evaluation of ability and social-cultural, economic and supportive factors that effect on empowerment of Isfahan's farmer women. Required information was collected by questionnaire. For evaluate disability of women by means of Alkier and foster manner and evaluating effective factors was done by logistic regression. Results of regression model shows that academic education, occupation, using media, high social and employment relations, earning higher incomes, health, government support, effect of using various training, believe in equality and existence of credit fund have a significant effect on ability of women. However variables such as primary education, low income and office of communication services have a positive effect on capability and statistically is significant.

Key Words: empowerment, farmer women, Logit regression